Expansion to London's South Bank sends strong message of commitment to local clients, accelerates growth

LONDON - 1 NOV 2016 - Convercent, the leading global provider of modern compliance management software, today announced the opening of its first UK-based office. The South Bank location will better serve the firm's clients that are based in Europe, the Middle East and Africa as well as accelerate growth in these markets. The office is located at 22 Upper Ground and will join the company's existing location in Denver.

"The opening of our new European office reflects the growth we are seeing on both sides of the Atlantic," says Keith Read, Managing Director, Europe at Convercent. "This new location is a direct response to the demand for compliance-related products and services in this region - customers who come to Convercent wanting more than just compliance management, and trust us to help protect their companies."

"Convercent's presences in London symbolizes our growth and helps to better serve some of our most loyal clients in the region," says Patrick Quinlan, CEO and co-founder of Convercent. "Offering on-site support to these clients in real-time is a game-changing level of support as well as bring our world-class compliance solution to more businesses around the globe to help further enable business to operate safely and ethically around the world."

"Having a partner of this caliber be physically represented in Europe is a strategic move for compliance programs across the region," says Tonnis J. Poppema, Senior Director Ethics and Compliance at Lumileds Holding B.V. "What Convercent offers goes beyond technology and into one of those connections you cannot operate your business ethically without."

Convercent was founded on the observation that global organizations are managing huge compliance, legal, risk and regulatory issues on spreadsheets - or in a dozen different disparate systems. The company designs integrated, easy-to-use and common sense software to better manage compliance despite industry or company size. The new location is at the heart of the commercial district in Central London adjacent to the River Thames, which flows through the entire city.
